Management’s Discussion of Fund Performance

MARKET OVERVIEW

Investors continue to focus on the perceived effects Artificial Intelligence (“AI”) will have on businesses, with a relatively narrow group of large-cap AI-related stocks earning a disproportionate share of stock market returns. While the big five hyperscalers (Alphabet, Amazon, Apple, Meta and Microsoft) and areas of the market tied to semiconductors and data center infrastructure have recently surged higher, many software businesses and other perceived AI “losers” remain under pressure as investors continue to assess the long-term competitive implications of the technology.

Such dispersion is not unusual in the face of significant technological change. Turbulence and heightened price volatility should be expected as disparate investors seek to discount dramatic change. Instead of attempting to pick AI winners and losers, however, we focus on selecting stocks for the Fund with both durable quality characteristics and reasonable valuations. Collectively, we believe the Fund is appropriately diversified and positioned to perform well across a range of economic and technological environments.

SUMMARY OF RESULTS

Stocks posted outsized returns for the year ended April 30, 2026. The EIC Value Fund (EICCX) gained 15.15%, trailing the return of its benchmark, the Russell 3000 Value Index, which surged 29.96%. The Fund’s shortfall was attributable primarily to its sector weightings relative to the index and secondarily to its stock selection. (Notably, the Fund’s sector weightings are principally a by-product of stock selection.)

TOP CONTRIBUTORS TO PERFORMANCE

- The Fund’s holdings in the financial sector led the index’s financial stocks. (US Bancorp was the Fund’s top performer in this sector.)
- Stock selection in the materials sector also contributed to performance as the Fund’s holdings outpaced the index’s material stocks. (Barrick Mining was the Fund’s top performer.)
- The Fund’s overweight in the energy sector, one of the market’s stronger performing sectors, also helped performance.

TOP DETRACTORS TO PERFORMANCE

- The Fund’s lack of exposure to the information technology sector detracted from performance, as it was the market’s top performing sector.
- The Fund’s holdings in the health care sector fell compared to an increase in the index’s health care stocks. (Baxter was the Fund’s worst performer in this sector.)
- The Fund’s holdings in the communication services sector trailed the index’s communication services stocks. (AT&T was the Fund’s poorest performer in this sector.)

Fund Performance

The following is a comparison of the change in value of a $10,000 investment in EIC Value Fund's Class C over the past 10 years, vs. the S&P 500® Index, which the Fund has designated as its broad-based securities market index in accordance with the SEC's revised definition, and the Russell 3000® Value Index, which more closely aligns with the Fund's investment strategy.
